Exciting changes continue for the IJMet as we move on to Volume 33 in 2008 with the prospect of going to 12 issues per year, IJMet Online and IJMet Education Centre, all in progress. As we continue to grow, our content becomes ever more diverse, ranging from academically scientific research papers to fascinating documentary evidential studies and even observations from the casual cloud observer. There is something for everyone from the academic Professor, to the lay fascinated amateur.

As climate change beckons, the IJMet is the only journal where you will read about monthly tornado and other whirlwind statistics for the United Kingdom as well as international weather impacts and their cause. We are the only prestigious journal completely devoted to severe weather meteorology documentation and research.

Postage price increases during 2007 have meant an increase in the Journal price for 2008, but as a special offer to current subscribers, if you renew by 10 December 2007 keep your current price until 2009!

There are currently 10 issues per year. Year 2008 commences with Volume 33, Issue 325 and ends with 334. If we are able to produce 12 issues, no further charge will be made. Cancellations are accepted. Subscriptions are payable in advance. Email orders and PayPal payments are encouraged. Limited back issues are available at an extra cost of £7.50 each for non-subscribers and £5.00 each for subscribers. Contact us for details if back issues are required mid-year. Whatever your requirements, we are happy to assist and will do our best to accommodate your needs. Subscriptions begin on the month payment is made, if that month's Journal is already dispatched, subscriptions begin the following month. Renewals are requested two months before subscription ends. If renewals are made later than the subscription month, the month you pay in will become the new renewal month and journals from unpaid months will be missed in the dispatch. If you want to purchase those missing journals either an extra postage charge will be made or back issue costs apply, (dependent on how late the renewal is). Claims must be made within 6 months as we cannot guarantee stock of back issues held for you. Refunds or part refunds (depending on how many journals you have already received) will be given on request if the subscription is cancelled. IJMet is a non-profit organisation documenting severe weather events and research for the good of scientific communities worldwide. We therefore cannot guarantee a specific publication date. Details of up-coming journals and events can be found at www.ijmet.org.
